Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I do not want to pay more for my telephone service! I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable and my cell phone is my only phone at the moment.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls and that is just wrong. We should only pay for what we use, not the average that all people pay. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair! It is like going to a restaurant and paying the average of what was spent by all the customers that night when all you bought was a salad.

I use my wireless phone for safety, security and convenience. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Sonya Sabb
